Special Disputch.

BALTIMORE, June 13.—Nearly a year ago religious circles in this city and other cities were considerably exercised over the aunouncement that a young girl of 18, of respectable Christian parentage, had renounced the Christian faith and embraced the Hebrew religion. Those who will recall the case will recollect that the young lady after meeting the Rev. L. M. Lillianthal, a Hebrew rabbi of this city, made his house her home, his grown daughter by a deceased wife being her constant companion, and that under his care she was educated in the Hebrew language and made acquainted with the tenets of the Hebrew faith, When Rev. Mr. Lillianthal had completed her course of studies, and she had insisted upon renouncing the Christian religion, the rabbi summoned several well known Hebrew citizens to his residence, to whom the young girl repeated her intention of accepting the Jewish faith, explaining that the act was a purely voluntary one on her part, and in the presence of the Hebrew citizens referred to the ceremonies of renunciation, &c. were proceeded with. In entering upon her new life the girl was baptized with the name of Rebecca Lillianthal. The rabbi the name of Rebecca Lillianthal. The rabbi accepted her as his adopted daughter, pledging himself to provide for her temporal and spiritual welfare. Her family had protested against the step, but the girl declined to permit anything to interfere with her arrangements. For some weeks the serenity of the rabbi's household was undisturbed. The fair convert and her adopted father were as affectionate as possible. Rebecca addressaffectionate as possible, Rebecca addressing him as "papa," and expressing to relatives and friends her admiration and tender regard for her adopted father, who in turn spoke of her endearingly as his daughter. Shortly after this a young Hebrew met Rebecce and an engagement of marriage follows: beeca, and an engagement of marriage fol-lowed. The match was however, broken off, the young man declaring that he had made such discoveries as to prompt him to abandon the suit, while the young lady told a some-what different story. The matter was dis-cussed, but was soon forgotten, and Rabbi Lillianthal and his protege had passed almost out of the public mind, when interest in the series of sensational episodes was revived by the discovery to-day that Rabbi Lillianthal and his fair daughter Rebecca had been united in marriage last evoning. The marriage license was procured yesterday and the wedding solemnized in the presence of a few friends. The Rev. Mr. Lillianthal and his bride have moved from East to West Baltimore. The sister of

The democratic primary commission did not complete their list of quo judges and clerks for the coming convention primaries until this evening. Acceptances have been received from them all, and all the differences between the Young Damocratic associa-tion and the regulars appear to have been adjusted. The executive committee of the regulars decided this evening to assume the expense of advertising the list, which will appear to-morrow. It is believed that only the bride asserted to-day that the wedding was compulsory on the part of the bride-groom, and was rendered necessary by existing circumstances. She declared that Lillianthal's conduct had been the highest degree reprehensible. Rabbi Lillienthal has had accompanied by the conduct had been the statement of the conduct had been the highest degree reprehensible.

WASHINGTON'S CASINO DIRECTOR. It was ascertained to-day that the position of manager of the proposed casino opera house to be erected in Washington has been tendered to Samuel W. Fort, manager of the Academy of Music here, and that he has ac-cepted. Mr. Fort will direct both theaters, and, as far as may be practicable, operate them together. He stated to-day that the present indications all point to the comple-tion of the new opera house by next spring. Mr. Fort is now booking engagements for next season, the most of which, if not all of them, will probably appear at Washington's new opera house.

good men have been selected, and that the primaries will be absolutely fair.

From private reports received at the Johns Hopkins university it is learned that some very important scientific results have been very important scientific results have been reached by the Hastings party in connection with the investigation of the solar eclipse in the South Pacific. The general reports telegraphed do not convey a clear idea of the importance of the discoveries made by the party. From a scientific gentleman connected with the Johns Hopkins your correspondent learned that the discoveries made by the Hastings party of observers, demonstate that the corona is not an appendage to the sun as the corona is not an appendage to the sun as was supposed, but merely an optical phenomenon—having to do with our vision through the earth's upper atmosphere. All apparent proof heretefore was to the effect that this beautiful accompaniment to all total solar eclipses belonged strictly to the sun itself. Astronomers have not hitherto been satisfied with any theory as to the nature of the corona, hence the importance of this in-formation. The spectrascope has, it is be-lieved, clearly traced the corona to the earth's CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO CANAL. BALTIMORE, June 13.—A meeting of the directors of the Chesapeake and Ohio canal was held in this city to-night. The question was a reduction of toils, and at a late hour it was decided to reduce the toil on coal from 50 to 40 cents per ton between Cumberland and Georgetown, subject to the approval of the board of public works. This, it is expected, will be followed by a reduction of freight, which is now 90 cents per ton.

A DAY OF JUNEETING. This has been a day of junketing by rail and water from here. The Massachusetts Press association arrived here last night, and were to-day taken down the bay on the steamer Latrobe by the press of Baltimore. A handsome collation was served en route. The New England quill drivers expressed their admiration for the toothsome soft crab and other delicacies provided. The Dynamite club, of Philadelphia, with a party of Philadelphia press representatives and offi-cers of the Pennsylvania railway run over here in a special train this morning, and car-ried back with them as the guests of the Quaker city some fifty members of the Balti-more Gunpowder club. Both are social organizations, and these visits are of annual occurrence, alternating between the two cities, and have proved highly enjoyable. The present "junket" promises to prove an exceptionably pleasant one.

AN INTERESTING TRIAL.

A case of some interest is on trial in the supreme court. August Beck, a wealthy German citizen, while returning from Germany, met a young lady from Wurtemberg on the steamer, and, on arriving here, married her. Almost immediately he died, and the griefstricken young widow returned to her home, where an infant son was born. In settling Beck's estate this fact was ascertained, and the United States consul at Stuttgardt ap-Beck's estate this fact was ascertained, and the United States consul at Stattgardt appointed Mr. Thomas A. Hopkins, of the Baltimore bar, to act as attorney for the infant. He interfered with the administration of the estate on behalf of the child, and the counsel engaged in winding up the estate, Mr. E. Otis Hinkley and Henry Trick offered to pay him one third of the commissions if he would not interfere with the sale of property, but join in with them on the part of the infant. He consented to do so, and the matter was settled, but Hinkley and Trick refused to pay Hopkins his commissions, the refused to pay Hopkins his commissions, the result being the suit by Hopkins vs. Hinkley and Trick, now in progress. The defendants deny the legitimacy of the child and repudiate the authority of the United States consul at Stuttgardt to appoint an attorney for him.

The case for the prosecution was then declared closed, and Mr. Clarke, Q. C., began his argument on behalf of Dr. Gallagher. He declared that there was no occasion to defend the prisoner against the charge of levying war against the government, as no evidence had been adduced to show that he was guilty of that offense.

Lord Chief Justice Coleridge declared that if the prisoners had agreed to destroy property of the crown, to endanger life, or to intimidate the councilors of the queen or parliament, they had virtually levied war against the country. Counsel for the defense sub-mitted that there was no case against Bernard Gallagher, who, he said, had acted while under the influence of drink. The court then adjourned.

A SENSATION IN FRANCE.

A SENSATION IN FRANCE.

Paris, June 12.—Paris is much excited over-the condition of affairs in Cochin China, not because of any immediate danger in Tonquin, nor because of the impending war with China, but on account of the quick and intense interest taken by the other continental powers in France's aggressive colonial policy. The two startling features of the situation are the threatened peaceable intervention by Germany, which is very offensive to the people, however welcome it may be to the government and the publicly expressed and professional opinion of so prominent an officer professional opinion of so prominent an officer as Vice Admiral De Gueydon, who says bluntly that success in the east is impossible under France's present policy. Figure was rash enough to say editorially that the time for discussion had passed, and that whether France's policy toward Tonquin and toward China was right or wrong, it was too late for France to change it and she must continue to change it and she must continue either to success or defeat. The admiral answors over his own signature: "Who will re-ceive profit from Tonquin? Shall we succeed in colonizing it or even in governing it? No!" This pronounced statement comes in on the heels of the announcement that Baroa Von Brandt has reached this city, after a hur-ried journey from Pekin, a brief consultation with Count von Hotzfeldt, the German minister of foreign affairs, and Tseng, the Chinese ambassador, as he passed through Berlin. Von Brandt's knowledge of Chinese governmental affairs, and he is minister to China, is reputed to be extremely accurate and mi-nute, and the Marquis Tsong has plenipotentiary powers and is to-day in London inter-mediating there as Von Brandt is believed to be doing here. All this leads up to a para-graph in the daily journals that Prince von Hohenlohes, the German minister here, "has been granted leave of absence for the purpose of visiting Berlin." The severity of Admiral De Gueydon's strictures and the startling effect they have had can be imagined from his statement that "before insanely spending immense sums in adding new colonies to those already existing, we should proceed no fur-ther on the path which is sure to make us lose them all." He maintains that France's free trade system leaves the country a very nall share of the trade for which it make Another Exciting Tragedy in the Streets of Uniontown.

James Nutt Avenges His Father's Death-Details of the Affair.

Dukes Said to Have Met Young Nutt on the Street and Laughed in His Face.

Special Diepatch.

Uniontown, Pa., June 13 .- James Nutt killed Dukes, the murderer of his father, here to-day. There is great excitement in the town. Nutt is lodged in jail. James Nutt is the second son of Capt. Nutt's children, being next in ago to Miss Lizand will be twenty-one years in August next. He is a quiet young man, seldom having anything to say, except when spoken to, and not much then. He is of a peculiar turn of mind, not being very sociable, but decidedly retired. When his father was killed not a few predicted that James ,would avenge the death. Dukes himself feared this boy more than any other person, some saying that he had carefully avoided him. Mrs. Nutt was also apprehensive that her son would thus take the matter into his own hand. and had tried bard and often to induce him to promise her that he would not do it. She could never get him to give her any assurance, however, as he persistently refused to make any promise. A few days ago he went home in a very irritable mood said to his mother: "Mother, I and can't stand this. I met Dukes on the street to-day, and he laughed in my face." She feared from this time on that the worst would come. It is not known when or where James purchased the revolver, nor is it thought that any one had any intimation that he had formed the purpose of executing the deed. He performed it with coolness and deliberation and remarked afterwards that it had to be done. After he was in the hands of the officers he asked auxiously whether he had hurt any one else. He repeated this inquiry to hose who visited him after he was lodged in jail, and when assured that his bullets had harmed only
